Two questions of importance were considered by the Parks Board: 1st, how shall the parks be maintained in the future; 2nd, how shall the debt against the Palo Duro State Park be liquidated.

The question of maintenance is a state wide problem. The Parks Board has never received an ap-

Old Projects Carried Forward With Slight Halt —Harrison Given District Job

WPA work closed down Monday in Canyon as the old set-up ended with the fiscal year, but opened again yesterday morning when all men were ordered to report for work. The men will continue at work until the new regulations are received.

Frank Harrison has been promoted to field supervisor of Randall, Potter, Deaf Smith and Oldham counties. He has been in charge of the projects in Canyon since WPA started. His successor has not been announced, but will likely be in a few days. In his new capacity Mr. Harrison will continue to look after all work in Randall county.

Three projects are now being carried on in the county.

Rapid progress has been made with widening Fourth avenue.

The museum basement will be completed in about two weeks.

Rock work is being carried on at Buffalo Stadium.

Harvest Is Held Up Until Middle Of Next Week

Several Start Cutting But Wheat Is Found Too Green—Weather Is Hot and Dry

Those who are expected to start harvesting this week are convinced that the wheat is still too green for the combines.

It is now likely that harvest will not be in full blast over the county before the middle of next week.

The continued hot weather has ripened the early wheat, but the late wheat is still green, and cannot be combined. The few who started cutting last week decided to wait until the heads are ripened more.

No rain has fallen in the county during the past week excepting in spots, although showers have fallen at various sections of the Panhandle.

AUNT OF MRS. WISEMAN DIES AT SOUTH PLAINS

Mrs. J. A. Wiseman was called to South Plains last week by the death of her aunt, Mrs. Josephine Daniels, who died there at the home of her son. Funeral services were held at Lockney Thursday afternoon, followed by interment in the Silverton cemetery. She was 67 years of age.

Mrs. A. C. Donnell was appointed as the new relief Case worker Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Bradley, district relief administrator, of Amarillo.

Mrs. Donnell will be located in the Relief building on the east side of the square, and all relief cases will be checked by her in the future instead of the County Judge as has been the custom in the past; thus relieving the Judge of much work, which required a great deal of time. At the same time Mrs. Donnell will be able to keep a more accurate and complete check on all cases that are receiving relief.

She will be in the office three days of each week, but her schedule has not yet been announced.

Celebration Will Be Packed Full Interest

Program Starts at 9:30 Saturday Morning and Ends With Big Cool Rodeo Under Lights of Buffalo Stadium—Lieut. Murphy Added to Attractions to Be Shown at Noon Saturday

"Everything is in readiness for the Fourth of July celebration in Canyon," announced W. A. Warren, yesterday. Mr. Warren is president of the Chamber of Commerce, which sponsors the celebration, and is general chairman of the celebration.

An interesting program has been arranged which starts at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, and will contine until 10:30 at night.

A new feature was added this week when Lieut. Murphy, dare-devil car driver and airplane stuntman, was offered to the local committee by Walter Irvin. Lieut. Murphy will perform from 12 o'clock noon until 1:00 o'clock. In spite of the fact that Mrs. Murphy had her arm cut off when she fell into the propeller of her plane, Lieut. Murphy has been begged by Mrs. Murphy to carry on, and to put on the regular programs for which he was slated this week.

Red Myrick was here Monday checking up on the night rodeo which will be put on at 8:00 p. m. under the lights at Buffalo Stadium. "This will be the only night rodeo west of Fort Worth," states Mr. Myrick. "The cool breeze which sweeps over Buffalo Stadium, and the splendid lighting system of the athletic field will make possible a better performance than we could give in the day time, and the crowd will not be blistered by a hot sun. Everyone who comes will be given a real western show," stated Mr. Myrick.

All business houses in Canyon will remain open during the day, according to an agreement reached with the Chamber of Commerce officials.

The program will be highly attractive throughout the day, but is arranged so that people may look after business while in Canyon without missing any of the attractions.

Irby Carruth has been named marshal of the day, and will keep the program running smoothly.

There will be plenty of free ice water on the court house lawn during the day. The Boy Scouts will have a stand to furnish iced drinks.

"Come to Canyon and bring your lunch for the noon hour," urges Mr. Warren. "The shade is fine on the court house lawn, and the people are cordially invited to use it.

Wes Kleinschmidt is in charge of the kid games and races to be held in the morning. All boys in the county are urged to be present and to participate in these events.

$50 cash will be distributed free at 3:00 o'clock. Forty business

Congressional Medal Awarded To Joe Hill, Jr.

Three members of the Byrd antarctic expedition who, while still in their twenties, braved the ice-barrens to make history with Admiral Richard Byrd, have been awarded Congressional Medals of Honor.

Joe Hill, Jr., now of Dallas, is a son of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill, and is well-known throughout this section of the State from the many lectures he made after his return, on his experiences while with the expedition.

The other two, who like Hill, were youngsters when they started away with the Byrd Expedition for the antarctic regions, are E. J. Demas, 30, of Washington, D. C., and F. G. Dustin, 25, of Morrisville, Vt. Working with these young men at Little America, Admiral Byrd's exhibit at the Texas Centennial Exposition, is a fourth member of the expedition, George Black, 40, who previously was awarded the Congressional Medal. Black and Demas were on Byrd's two polar expeditions. Demas also made the transatlantic flight with the famous American explorer in 1927.

Hill, Demas and Dustin helped lay Admiral Byrd's advance base

PANHANDLE MEMBER PRESS ASSOCIATION

POLITICAL HOOEY

A citizen of Canyon turned to the writer Saturday and asked a pertinent question: "What is the chain store, and how many people are there in Canyon who are not connected with the chain business?"

A very sound question, and it lead to some thinking.

How many independents are there, and how independent can a business man be?

The news print which is used in this edition is made by a great chain corporation. If The News refused to buy from the "chain" outfit, we would probably have to pay ten times as much for paper as we do, because concentration of effort has brought prices down.

The type for this edition is set on a machine, the biggest chain manufacturer in the printing world. It is almost a monopoly, but the price of the machine is less because there are only two companies in the world making this sort of machine.

The printing presses in this shop are the products of closed and exclusive monopolies.

There is not a car or truck or farm machine on the market of Canyon which is not the product of the chain organization. Every automobile agency in the United States is a chain outfit.

Every bank in the land is a member of the great Federal Reserve chain, and your deposits are protected by the Federal Depositors Insurance Corporation. If each bank was forced to do business with an "independent" corporation your money would not be safe in the banks.

The American people have learned that the products of the chain corporations, nationally advertised goods, are the best goods and the cheapest goods on the market because they have withstood the test of public demand.

When you buy groceries, you buy the chain products, because you know a great corporation stands behind the goods you buy.

Every filling station in Canyon is from some sort of a chain.

When you buy dry goods, you first look at a label, and demand the goods which are standard, a chain product.

No one would be foolish enough to demand of the life insurance agent, or the fire insurance agent that each policy be written in a little independent company which operated only in Randall county. You demand the strength of the chain.

These demegogues who are howling their heads off about "chain" operations are ignorant of what they are demanding.

There are a few "chains" to be sure which operate largely with sweat shop materials and goods which should be wiped out. These are the institutions which are using the offensive practices which makes all chains condemned. But unjust taxation will not turn the trick. The chain store bill passed by the last legislature places the highest tax on chain stores of any state in the union. It is now being tried in the courts, and every one who has read the bill admits that it will be declared unconstitutional. The bill seeks to wipe out the chain stores thru the process of taxation, and this principle will not stand the test of the courts.

NO OFFENSE, DAVE

The News hastens to assure Dave Warren of the Panhandle Herald that no offense was meant to Panhandle newspapers in the recent discussion in this paper of the unreasonable attitude of Amarillo toward four Canyon men who were fired from an Amarillo job. Those newspapers who continue to have fun poking jibes at Amarillo are welcomed to do so. Regardless of what the country towns think about the situation, Amarillo will continue to grow.

But a funny thing has developed about this labor scrap. A union man assures The News that the unions refused to have anything to do with this firing—that it was the unskilled laboring men of Amarillo who put over the job with the assistance of the Amarillo city officials, and the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Now comes a letter from the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce declaring that they had refused to have anything to do with it.

Looks like a case of buck passing between Amarillo organizations in order to escape all blame.

The following is from the Panhandle Herald:

"Clyde Warwick, editor of the Canyon News, took a dig at the editors who have recently discussed some Amarillo angles in recent issues. As The Herald was one of those newspapers, we naturally feel that we were included in the delegation. But we believe that the rural press has more power than comparison of a fly to the elephant in discussion of the affairs pertaining to the Panhandle.

"The Canyon editor seems to have become riled over the WPA building projects at the West Texas State Teachers College. More than 70 Amarillo men were employed at Canyon, and four Canyon men obtained jobs at Amarillo. Union labor forced out the Canyon men, although the Amarilloans were earning good money on the Canyon job. Contractors in two Canyon jobs sustained losses because of squabbles over the Amarillo labor situation.

"Mr. Warwick doesn't like the situation and feels that an injustice has been done. At least, he has had the courage to write about the situation. Some editors probably would have passed up the difficulty, and we think Mr. Warwick deserves commendation for his frankness in discussing the problem."

There is considerable difference between the man who is employed for his ability in his profession and the man who is employed for corrupt purposes. For the past 100 years the American people have always pointed their finger of scorn upon every successful man in public office, charging that he is the tool of corporate interests. If politics ruins every good man who goes into it, then Democracy is a complete failure, and we had best abolish this sort of government. The members of the Texas legislature are paid $1200 for serving two years in the 120 day regular session. It is usual for two extra sessions to be called which will add $600 to the pay, or $1800 for two years' work. The expenses at Austin will take practically all of this money unless the legislator lives at the wagonyard. Yet there are men who run for the legislature audacious enough to come before the people and claim that no member of the legislature should accept any sort of employment except the money which the state pays him. Employment of a lawyer by a big concern is based upon hard-headed business principles. If the man is a good lawyer, the concern will employ him if he is qualified to handle the case in question, regardless of his legislative membership; but if he is no good as a lawyer he would never be employed if he stayed in the legislature for 20 years. It is ridiculous to hear the character of men assailed for political purposes, especially when it comes from those who have never been able to accomplish anything of importance for themselves.

Presidential candidate Lemke of the Union Party declared: "The bonds the bankers are holding were created with nothing and should be repaid with nothing." Such wild statements causes one to wonder why such a man could ever be elected to public office, since he now is a congressman. Practically every bank holds large blocks of government bonds, since the banks cannot safely invest their deposits in commercial paper. To repudiate these bonds, as Mr. Candidate Lemke would have the nation do, simply means the closing of practically every bank in the nation, and stealing the money from the people whose deposits are in the banks. The Roosevelt administration has rightfully insured the deposits of the people in the banks of this nation. The wild schemes of the Lemke-Coughlin-Townsend-Long crowd are so unreasonable, and in this instance so dishonest, that certainly not many voters will be deceived.

Those who believe that the Supreme Court is such a sacred institution should ask themselves that when these nine able men cannot agree as to what the constitution says, how can the ordinary citizen be expected to understand the meaning of his government. The defenders of the Supreme Court place these nine capable men on a pedestal for public admiration, and they are a venerable body, but when the court divides five to four as it so often does, whom shall you believe, the 5 or the 4? Being human, one of the 5 is as likely to be wrong in his decision, as are the four dissenters.

We bet that the Republican who started the t-h-r-e-e l-o-n-g y-e-a-r-s war cry for the party is now mighty sorry for having been so smart. The barbed tongue of Senator Barkley peeling out T-W-E-L-V-E L-O-N-G Y-E-A-R-S made the Republican battle cry seem like a pitiful plea. The Republicans may be getting a little hungry away from the public feed trough for three years, but just think what us Democrats suffered during those twelve long years.

One million people had entered the gates of the Texas Centennial at Dallas Friday afternoon. The attendance has surpassed the Century of Progress in its entrance fees. As Sam Braswell of the Paducah Post puts it: "Patriotism plus paid advertising" is responsible. Every Texan, or at least the largest part of the six million people in the state should plan to attend the Centennial before the closing time in November.

FDR has set his jaw and announced that the fight is on. Rather than wait for months trying to make up his mind on important questions, as Landon is doing, the President hits the trail and assails the Republicans and his opponent. Never before has the nominee of a great political party been notified and made his acceptance speech within 24 hours. On with the battle.

"We are told by the Republican battalion of death and its illigitimate brother, the American Liberty League, that we are laying the hampering hand of government on the innocent heads of business and finance," barked Barkley, as he defended the administration attitude in recovery. That should make Al Smith perspire while on his walk.

Fred E. Wortham is now publisher of the Moore County News at Dumas. He has been with the Castro County News at Dimmitt for six months. Congratulations is extended by his friends in Canyon at this promotion. He was with the Canyon News and Canyon Chamber of Commerce for several years.

The war to end war turned out to be a considerable fizzle, judging the terrific pace each nation has set to prepare for the next war.

The modern girl may know the ropes, but they are not the kind you hang washing out on.

When Democrats Heard the Name of 'Roosevelt'

Just mention of the name "Roosevelt" was enough to send the Democratic national convention into an uproar. Here is such a scene, with delegates from Massachusetts carrying one of their number, James Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, about Philadelphia's convention hall during one of the many demonstrations.

Dr. Erik Ljunger, Swedish geologist, believes South America was once buried under an ice cap. That must have been some hangover.

R. A. Terrill and C. N. Harrison completed an audit of Sheriff R. H. Sanford's books and found them $1,000 short. "The county officials do not consider that Mr. Sanford took his life on account of this shortage in his books," was the report of County Judge W. D. Scott.

About 25 wagons and teams were signed up to take the 341 normal students to the Palo Duro for the 4th of July.

"Advertise your business or the sheriff will do it for you," announced John Wanamaker, the world's greatest merchant as he closed advertising contracts for his New York store. The contracts amounted to one million dollars for advertising in five New York papers.

Frankie Frisch Modulates Groans of Grief as Young Stu Martin Proves Sensation at Second for Cardinals

BY PHILIP MARTIN

STU MARTIN beat Father Time to the punch. The old gent with the sickle was waiting for a chance to mow down Manager Frankie Frisch, who has been second basing around the National League for longer than he cares to remember, when young Stu broke into the St. Louis Cardinal lineup and saved the ancient guy a lot of unnecessary effort.

Early in the current campaign, Frisch's aged underpins, which have been subject to a lot of punishment around the midway sack, began to show signs of wear and tear. Martin being a versatile sort of fellow, Frankie called upon him to hold down second base for a few days, confidently expecting to return soon to his old stamping ground.

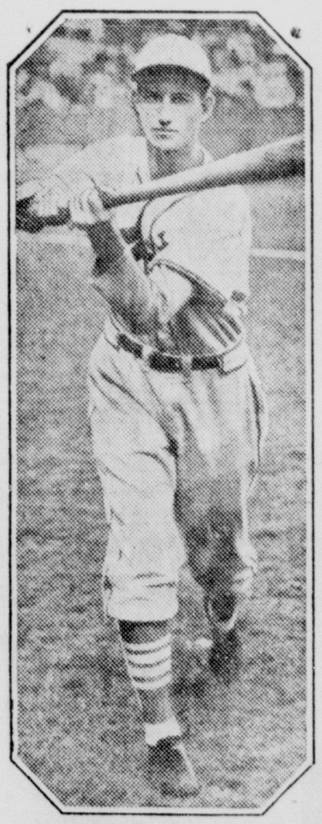
IT wasn't in the books, however, for Stu has been putting on a grand show for the fans, and it now appears that Martin has permanently displaced Frisch as the regular second sacker of the Gas House Gang.

The fact that he has shoved Frankie out of the picture is in itself testimony of his worth, for the Fordham Flash has plenty of good baseball left in his system, over short distances.

The strange part of it is that the little guy—Martin weighs only around 155 pounds—didn't get even a call during the spring training season; he was just another bush leaguer with a flashy record. There was little eyebrow lifting even when he was given a shot at playing short, during the enforced absence of Leo Durocher, the regular shortstop.



Stu Martin . . . this slim youngster has a mighty fat batting average right now, and his second basing is pleasing St. Louis crowds.

But when Stu stepped into Frisch's brogans a few days later . . . He got away with a rush, hitting the ball in the pinches, hounding sizzling drives in his territory, and generally exhibiting all the pepper credited to the other Martin, also of the Red Birds.

ALL this is pretty fair for a 22-year-old youngster with only three years of professional baseball tucked away.

Martin got his start with Columbus, a unit of the Cardinal chain system, and remained in the Ohio capital until June, 1934, being transferred to Houston for the rest of the semester.

He returned to Houston to open the 1935 season and stayed on until he wilted under the intense heat in May. Asheville, N. C., was his next port of call, and Stu remained there for the duration of the baseball year, playing in both infield and outfield.

Wherever he has gone, Martin has made a name for himself as a jack-of-all-trades, and, during his abbreviated career, has done everything but pitch and catch. Before hooking up with the Cardinals, Stu had played but 12 games at second.

Although the advent of Martin may ring down the curtain on Frisch as a regular performer, the Red Bird pilot probably is agreeable to trading a doubtful future as an active player for a bang-up second sacker who may clinch the flag for his club

Friends of Small Believe His Majority Three to One

Senator Clint C. Small, conducting a vigorous campaign for re-election to the Texas Senate, contrived to out-wit Old Sol this week when he adopted a policy of speaking to Panhandle audiences at night rather than asking an audience to brave afternoon heat to hear his discussions of regional problems.

Good-sized crows at Tulia Tuesday night and Hereford Wednesday night heard his analysis of Texas financial difficulties and his pledge that funds for prompt payment of old age pensions will be provided at the next session of the Legislature. He will speak at Perryton Thursday night.

The Senator has spent his days in renewing acquaintances and has visited more than 50 towns in the district since officially opening his campaign at Spearman 10 days ago. A speaking schedule is being arranged, according to Binford Arney, youthful campaign manager.

Arney urged that communities planning picnics or political rallies notify him at the Clint Small Headquarters, 307 Polk Street, in Amarillo, so that it might be arranged for Senator Small to attend.

"If he is already engaged for that date," Arney said, "we will send another speaker. However, Senator Small is anxious to meet every individual in the district and will be there if possible."

Small has paid little attention to the predictions of friends that he will be re-elected by a three-to-one majority and is making a more intensive tour of the district than he made in either of his two previous campaigns for the Senate.

His speeches so far have called attention to his agricultural legislation, his defense of the Panhandle's natural resources and the fact that he was the only man in either the House or Senate to offer a bill by which old age assistance money would have been provided. His omnibus tax bill was passed by the Senate but permitted to die in the lower house at the last session of the Legislature.

Who said family discipline was disappearing? Most parents do just what their children desire.

You may be admired for sticking up for your rights, but not for carrying a chip on your shoulder.

Correct for the Stratosphere

This costume may appear a bit outlandish, but it's what the well-dressed stratosphere explorer is wearing these days. Lieut.-Col. Herpera, director of the Superior Aerotechnical School of Spain, is wearing the suit, which offers protection against cold and rarefied atmosphere. He plans a stratosphere flight soon.

Each evening from 5:00 o'clock to 8 o'clock, classes are being conducted in the court house in Commercial English, Centennial History, speech, typing, short hand, and guitar and mandolin. All adults above sixteen are entitled to free tuition. Teachers are paid by the government, and students are urged to come and take advantage of this opportunity.

The Adult Education is a new move which began to be opened to adults by the government about September, 1934. Since then about 2,000,000 adult students have been enrolled in the United States. At first the object was mainly general education—or more of an elementary nature; but the new idea is to give people a chance to come together in open forum discussions of any topic in which they are interested. The subjects are suited to the persons interested.

"People do not live their lives as bookkeepers or mechanics; they are husbands and fathers, wives and mothers, friends and neighbors, members of organizations and responsible citizens in a democracy. Adult education must contribute to the fullness of life, as men and women live it in their varied roles and activities. Education is a continuation of living and learning and not a process of packing and cramming," says John W Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Ruth E. Baker is teaching English, Centennial history and speech for appreciation. She selected these subjects in order that she might aid club and interested women and men in their work by stressing organization, current literature, modern delivery, book reviews, etc. Her schedule is as follows:

5:00 to 6:00 p. m., English and Centennial and current history.

6:00 to 7:00 p. m., Speech.

7:00 to 8:00 p. m., General education. This hour is devoted to such elementary subjects as arithmetic, English, reading, writing, geography, etc.

Adults are invited to attend one or more of these classes any evening except Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Tom Lair and children, Harrold, Tommie, Margaret and Stanley, together with her sisters, Miss Maggie Avent and Mrs. Minnie Watson, have returned from a two weeks trip to the Yellowstone National Park and other places of interest in the northwestern states.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Warren motored to Childress Sunday where they visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fink and son. Mrs. Fink is a sister of Mrs. Warren.

A Million Miles to Matrimony

Pretty Katherine May decided a million miles was enough flying for one girl and resigned her job as stewardess with a commercial airline company to become a June bride. Miss May, one of the eight girls hired in 1930 when the stewardess idea was originated, completed her millionth mile by air this month. The lucky fellow was Ted Johnson, a dispatcher at Salt Lake City for the same airline.

'Miracle Candidate' Landon Appears Just a Typical American Citizen

NAMING of Alfred Mossman Landon as Republican presidential nominee perhaps appears to be a political miracle. Although now a man of national importance, Governor Landon was little known even in his native Kansas six years ago. That year he lost a race for a precinct chairmanship.

Kansans knew him as an unspectacular oil man who, operating independently, had made a small fortune by thrift and hard work, and had shown much sagacity in his few ventures into politics. In the most important of these, he managed the successful 1928 race of Republican Clyde M. Reed for the Kansas governorship.

It was after Landon had kept his feet in the Democratic landslides of 1932 and 1934, to be elected and re-elected governor, that he gained national notice. It was then that metropolitan newspapers hurried writers to Topeka to find out just what sort of person was this man whom the Republicans seemed likely to nominate in 1936.

THE correspondents clicked off reams about his economies, his budget balancing. They also uncovered colorful and humorous incidents in a career which many had thought totally lacking in these two elements.

Among these were:

Boyhood—How he talked a recalcitrant hen into laying an egg needed to fill a customer's order.

College—How, as a University of Kansas campus politician, he was known as "Foxy." (Kansas Democrats still refer to him by that sobriquet.) How he had the ice cream course eliminated from his fraternity's menu, and, in turn, presented the lodge with a handsome cuspidor. How he drank beer wtih a sub rosa drinking fraternity, and bet nickels when the Jayhawks played the Missouri Tigers in football. (He still wagers on this game—and still bets nickels.)

Business—How he drilled 14 dry holes in succession before striking oil in his 15th attempt. How he developed wonderful shines on his blue serge suits before discarding the threadbare articles.

Meet the Republican party's "man of the hour"—Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, in a characteristic photograph taken at Topeka as his star was rising at the Cleveland convention.

Governorship — How he was extremely vexed when a convict at the state prison obtained an unneeded pair of shoestrings—at the state's expense. How he rode horseback and fished at every opportunity. How he gave important luncheon guests only soup and a light dessert.

Candidate Landon is 48 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds. He wears rimless glasses and his black hair is graying rapidly. Always extremely friendly, he possesses a smile that is all that could be asked of any candidate.

His wife is charming Theo Cobb Landon of Topeka. There are three children: John Cobb, 2; Nancy Jo, 3, and Peggy Ann, 19. Pretty Kansas U. co-ed, Peggy Ann is the daughter of the first Mrs. Landon, who died in 1918.

Robinson Plans Educational Trip To New Mexico

An educational trip to Santa Fe and nearby points of interest has been planned by Miss Isabel Robinson, head of the art department, for students and art lovers.

The party will leave Saturday morning, going to Mt. Capulin, Raton, and then on to Taos to visit the pueblos there. On Sunday they will drive to Santa Fe, stopping to visit the famous prehistoric cliff dwellings and the noted Maria and Julian pottery makers there. In Santa Fe they will visit the Governor's palace which is now a museum, the art gallery, the oldest church in New Mexico, the La Fonda Hotel, and other famous places. Monday they will visit the surrounding country, sketch, and visit the shops displaying silver, pottery, weaving, turquoise, and various Indian handicrafts. Tuesday the party will leave for home, coming back by the Southern route—through Santa Rosa and Hondo valley.

Those interested in making this trip may consult Miss Robinson for details.

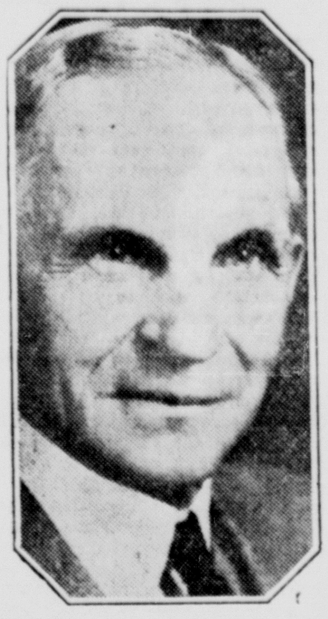
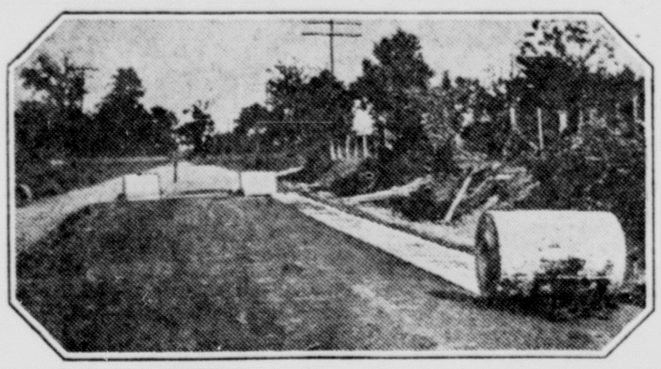
Industry Will Use Farm Surpluses, If Chemurgic Council Achieves Goal





Cotton for asphaltic roads . . . the young lady at upper left holds some of the material, while the man points to the cotton layer in the exhibit of a cross-section of pavement. The picture directly above shows the cotton base being laid on a road near Baton Rouge, La. Henry Ford, upper right, predicts the "farm will furnish the automobile body of the future."

A NEW farm group these days is giving attention to an old farm problem. The group is the Farm Chemurgic Council; and the problem, of course, is what to do about the farm surplus.

Composed of industrialists, journalists, chemists, and farm experts, the council visions development of new industrial uses for farm products as agriculture's salvation.

There is nothing new about the idea. Many men and many organizations have talked about it for many years. But this is the first time that investigation of the possibility of increasing the farm market by this means has progressed to any great extent.

An idea of the extent to which industry might absorb farm products is provided by the fact that if cotton were used to reinforce all asphaltic roads in the United States, an annual market for 400,000 bales of cotton would be created. And, in experiments conducted thus far, cotton seems to be an ideal reinforcement for these roads.

Maintenance cost is less than on ordinary bituminous pavement. The fabric prevents cracking and water seepage; and minimizes heaving when frost comes out of the ground. Each mile of asphalt requires from eight to 10 bales of cotton. This summer the U. S. government is laying nearly 1000 miles of such road for demonstration purposes.

LATEST idea for cotton is conversion of the entire plant—boll, pod, leaves, and stem—into cellulose.

More than 1200 representatives attended the second conference of the Farm Chemurgic Council. Held in Dearborn, Mich., the three-day session was attended by Henry Ford and Heber J. Grant, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. Mr. Grant said he was there to learn. Mr. Ford predicted that the "farm will furnish the automobile body of the future."

President of the council is Francis P. Garvan, who also heads the Chemical Foundation.

Oats was another subject discussed at the meeting. This grain, the council was told, is good for the human skin and will help preserve foods.

Emory R. Smith, of California, reminded the council that, while the cork oak grows about twice as fast in California as it does in the Mediterranean region, the United States still imports almost all its cork.

MORRIS SAYRE, vice president of Corn Products Refining Co., told the group that, although corn refining has been an established industry for more than 50 years, the 1936 grind was only 50 per cent larger than that of 1906.

Corn and cork will be among the crops receiving attention of the council. Others include soy beans, wood, hemp and flax, the tung tree, chicory, tobacco, and artichokes.

The council's plan for "co-ordinating agriculture, industry, and science" has five points. These are:

1. Organization and expansion of regional institutes, each of which shall devote itself to research on and development of a specific farm product.

2. Initiation of research seeking expansion in the industrial utilization of farm products.

3. Development of these outlets by establishment of pilot and demonstration plants to prove laboratory results and to initiate industrial application.

4. Consideration of more effective means of distributing such products, with particular emphasis on returning to the producer more of the processes beyond production, thus shortening the route and lowering costs to the consumer.

5. Promotion of the use of these processed products through national co-ordination among agriculture, industry, and science.

Secretary Henry A. Wallace has promised co-operation of the Department of Agriculture, but points out that the program must be long-range, unscrupulous exploitation of producers on false grounds must be prevented, and inter-commodity competition must be considered.

Fireworks Have Given Way to Auto as Death's Agent on 'Gory Fourth'

COMPARATIVELY few American children have been killed by Fourth of July firecrackers during the last few years, but their elders still get out their cars and speed to their deaths on the "Glorious Fourth."

Once the holiday auto toll was insignificant compared to the number of children seriously injured or killed by fireworks. Figures, however show the change.

Where fireworks claimed more than 100 lives each Fourth around the turn of the century, they have caused only 33 deaths in the last five years. During this period, July 4 auto accidents killed 473 persons.

As late as 1910, 131 died of burns on the Fourth. The list had shrunk to 4 by 1934. Last year the number was 6.

Mounting public opinion against holiday hysteria and development of tetanus anti-toxin were about equally important in reducing the fireworks toll. A really "sane" Fourth is observed now—as far as fireworks are concerned.

BUT this cannot be said of the automobile. While the auto casualty list is gradually being reduced, progress in this regard lags far behind that made in the concerted drive that ended the fireworks menace.

Car accidents were responsible for 54 deaths last Fourth. Contrasted with 1931's all-time high of 161, this record is encouraging, but few Americans, however, would term it satisfactory. Some idea of the tragedy ushered in annually may be had by comparing July 4 casualties with those of the American army in the American Revolution.

Study these tables:

Revolutionary War Battles	Killed and Wounded
Lexington	83
Bunker Hill	449
Fort Moultrie	37
White Plains	100
Fort Washington	149
Monmouth	229
Cowpens	72
Total	1119

The youth pictured directly above was a July 4 fireworks victim, but such accidents are becoming fewer each year. A family went for a holiday ride in the wrecked car shown in the top photo. Only one member survived the crash.

HERE is the July 4 fatality chart for the last eight years:

Year	Fire-works	Autos	Drown-ings	Other causes
1935	6	54	52	102
1934	4	69	70	34
1933	7	62	46	30
1932	10	117	90	26
1931	6	161	181	137
1930	12	81	57	28
1929	7	70	71	11
1928	11	54	106	34

A total of 1806 lives were sacrificed on those eight holidays, several hundreds more than died in seven of the principal battles of the Revolutionary War.

The year 1910 with its 131 fireworks deaths, brought launching of the first "Sane Fourth" campaign. By 1917 the deaths from this cause had dropped to 5. Figures for the intervening years. 1911, 57; 1912, 41; 1913, 32; 1914, 40; 1915, 30; 1916, 30.

The auto menace is no more invincible than was the fireworks bugaboo. American highways can be made safe on Independence Day.

The number of July 4 drownings has been about the same for many years. Reduction of these casualties is improbable as long as small boys continue to go swimming in out-of-the-way waters, and holiday crowds overtax large beaches.

And while drownings are almost as numerous as deaths from auto accidents, there is no injured list.

FREE*

FREEDOM! Throughout the life of our nation, it has characterized the hope, the desire, and the force behind each forward step. Freedom has motivated the growth, controlled the expansion, and marked the development of our government and our people. To the other nations of the world, it has become the trait to be desired above all else, and its virtues have been embodied in the country that we now enjoy.

But freedom cannot exist without responsibility, and with us that responsibility must continue to rest with the individual. On July 4, the one hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the birth of the world's first free nation, we must acknowledge this responsibility, and in acknowledging it, pledge continued support and allegiance to it.

Curtis Douglass Campaign Speech Here Saturday p.m.

Curtis Douglass of Panhandle spoke here Saturday afternoon in his campaign for the state senate. He was introduced by W. I. Gamewell.

He briefly stated his views on economy, taxation, and consolidation of departments of government. Practically all of his speech was devoted to a criticism of the work of his opponent, Senator Clint Small. Small was criticised for his attitude on conservation; was charged with having represented the great corporations; for missing many roll calls; for advocating a selective sales tax; for voting against the chain store bill.

Mr. Douglass is making an intensive campaign, and Saturday afternoon made speeches in three towns.

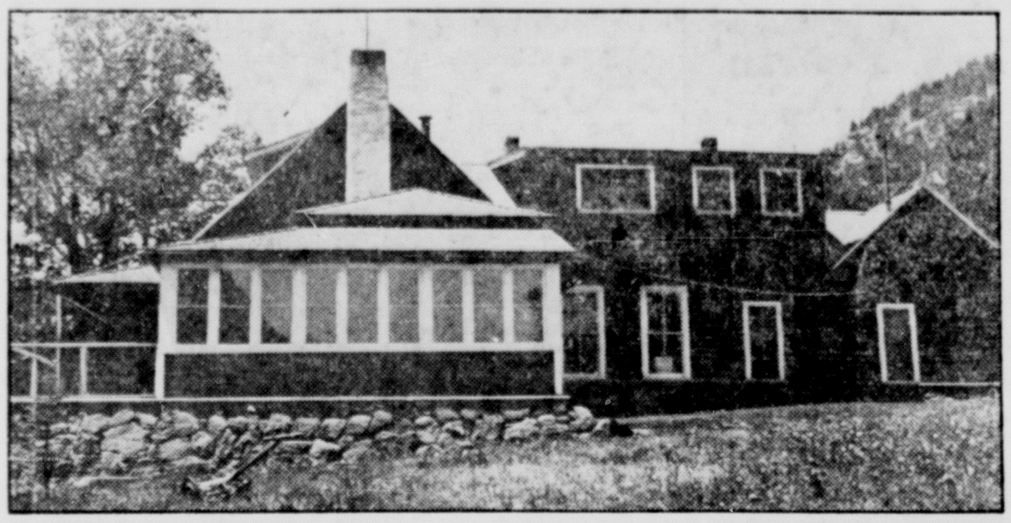
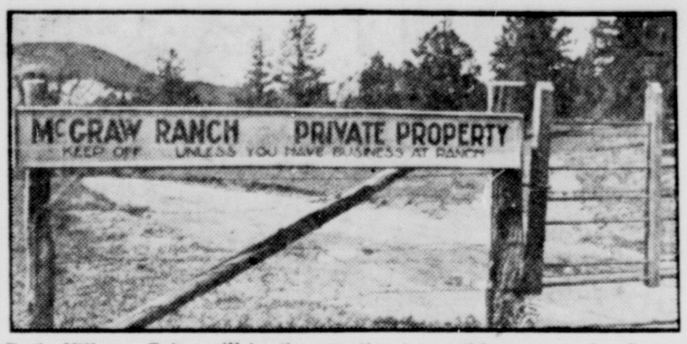
Where Landon and Family Rest Before Campaign





The McGraw ranch near Estes Park Village, Colo., will be the vacation home this summer for Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee, and his family. The campaign will absorb too much of the governor's time to allow him many holidays at the ranch, but the other members of his family plan to remain there for the greater part of the summer. Biggest factor in Governor Landon's decision to rent the ranch was a fine trout stream which runs through the extensive acreage. The ranch house is shown in the top photo, the manager, Spotsford Stone, lower left, and the gate to the ranch, lower right.

in Antarctica.

Advised of the action of Congress in bestowing the medals on his co-workers, Admiral Byrd wrote to the men at the Centennial Exposition. He said in part: "I have just received official notice from Washington that Congress has voted you the Congressional Medal. This is one of the highest gifts that is within the power of the American people to bestow. This medal is very unusual in that it carries a service ribbon such as are carried by the Military Cross and Distinguished Service Medal. . . . It will be some time before these medals are struck and delivered."

Admiral Byrd told of his plans to have copies of the resolutions bestowing the medals forwarded to the men at the Little America exhibit at the Texas Centennial Exposition.

Parks Board

propriation from the legislature for this purpose. Citizens interested in the various parks over the state will be enlisted to bring to the attention of the legislature the needs of these parks.

The debt against the Palo Duro was considered in a discussion of nearly two hours.

It was made clear by representatives of the National Park Service that work must be confined in the Palo Duro on land owned by the State of Texas. This amounts to only 120 acres plus the right-of-way through the Park. If the land could be cleared of debt, the National Park Service would be in position to start a large scale development.

Chairman Neff advised Fred A. Emory, who represents the lien holders, that the Parks Board had reached the conclusion that the debt as created in the original contract could not be met, and he was asked to consider a reduction of the original price.

The Board answered the criticism of the increased gate fees for the Park by citing that the rates were set in the original contract and deed to the land, and that the Board was inclined to carry out the terms of the contract until it was clearly shown that it faced an impossible situation. The income of the Park has never been sufficient to meet the terms of the contract.

Canyon and Amarillo were criticised for not extending greater cooperation in the development of the Park. Until shown that Randall county had spent $30,000 on the Palo Duro, Mr. Beauchamp was under the impression that nothing had been spent by the county.

An advertising program was recommended by both Canyon and Amarillo in the interest of the Park. The Board was advised that several thousand booklets had been printed and distributed, and that other advertising is being carried on in various ways.

While nothing definite came from this meteing, the impression was left by the Parks Board that during the coming year a definite policy would be adopted for the Palo Duro.

Care for the Palisades is in charge of a man who lives in the concession house, but receives no pay for his work. He has been forced to buy all water line supplies out of the small fees which are given him by the lot owners outside the state park area. The crowd has increased weekly at the Palisades since the increased admission was put on at the Palo Duro.

A large group of Hereford citizens met the official body at the concession house in the Hereford State Park. The Board informed the citizens that it was not in position to give that Park any money for support until the legislature had acted. The army keeps a man there to look after the barracks and the concession house. This park has a beautiful concession house and a bath house.

Mr. McColm will take first hand information back to the regional office concerning the Palo Duro. Mr. Christiansen is making a detailed study of the use of the various state parks in order to determine the future work which should be undertaken.

The toll gate for the Palo Duro will be moved back to the entrance of the Park some time this week, and collections will be made from all who enter the park property. In the past the gate has been at the office of the superintendent, and those who wished only to visit the lodge did not have to pay.

Mr. Neff highly praised the Palo Duro, its scenic beauty and its future possibilities. This was his first visit to the park since work was started here by the CCC camps.

houses in Canyon are co-operating in this weekly event.

At 3:30 o'clock, and continuing until 5:30 all candidates will be given an opportunity to speak. A loud speaker has been obtained for the afternoon. County and precinct candidates will be given the first chance to speak. The time for each speaker will be limited in order that the crowd may not become unduly burdened with oratory. State and district candidates are invited. The time for each speaker will be scheduled according to the number who come for this event. Clyde Warwick will be in charge of this event, and will introduce the speakers.

At 6:30 o'clock, Delbert Lowes will put on the softball games. The best players in Canyon will be selected to compose the teams which will perform.

The band will give a short program at 8:00 o'clock, and will then go to the Buffalo Stadium where the rodeo will be held. This event will be a fitting climax for the day. Red Myrick has put on two previous rodeos in Canyon, and this one will be far superior, states the Amarillo showman. He will perform a number of stunts with his Steffen's Wonder Horse, the best trained animal in West Texas.

All in all, the program will be the best that has been put on in Canyon for many years.

Smoke is said to deprive London of 300 hours of sunshine every year, and that's exclusive of campaign years, when political cigars are prevalent.
